Walker's Managers Hail His Campaign As "Moral Victory"

Dr. Walker Thanks Campaign Supporters

By MARY T. DAVIS

Although Dr. J. D. Walker lost last week by the City Administrator in his bid for position on the Memphis City Board of Education, leaders of his party felt that the loss was made because the Walker Campaign Committee delivered one third of their potential vote to the opposition. The Walker group had approximately one fourth of their number to go to the polls.

The First Negro for the County school board in the history of the city, Dr. Walker made a prediction of midnight Thursday and issued a statement to the press: "If the city is not given to the people of Memphis in accordance with the principles of the principles of the Memphis Declaration, then the city has been taken from the people of Memphis."

"We want to thank the white race," said Dr. Walker. "It was their citizenship that won this victory.""
Whiskey Deal Draws 5 Years

John L. Watts, 54, of Las Vegas, was sentenced to five years in prison for his role in a whiskey distribution scheme. Watts was involved in the smuggling of large quantities of whiskey from Mexico into the United States. The scheme involved the use of false paperwork and the alteration of tax stamps to avoid paying taxes. Watts was found guilty of conspiracy and tax evasion.

D.C. Wants No Confederate Flag-Waving

The city of Washington D.C. has announced plans to ban the display of Confederate flags on public property. The ban comes after a recent incident in which a Confederate flag was flown during a protest against police brutality. The city has also requested that the flag be removed from the White House.

North Carolina College Conference Meets Nov. 14

The North Carolina College for Women will hold its annual conference on November 14. The conference will focus on the topic of women's leadership in the workplace. Invited speakers will include business leaders and academics who have expertise in the field.

DURHAM CHURCH TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

The First Negro To N. C. LEAGUE OF MUNICIPALITIES

Ralph M. Peters, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Peters was one of the first African American members of the league, which was established in 1901. The event will include a keynote address by a former mayor of Durham.

First Negro To N. C. LEAGUE OF MUNICIPALITIES

Ralph M. Peters, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Peters was one of the first African American members of the league, which was established in 1901. The event will include a keynote address by a former mayor of Durham.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.

Winona Staley, a former member of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, will be honored at an anniversary event on November 14. Staley was one of the first African American women to serve as a city council member in North Carolina. The event will include a keynote address by a former city council member.
THE NATION'S CAPITAL

By Louis B. Brown
For the INNA News Service

BETWEEN THE LINES

The TRAGIC SEQUEL

There is a Latin maxim which states that "He who is hurt by the sword is bound to avenge himself with the same sword." This maxim is well illustrated by the tragic death of Joe Davis, a Negro who was killed last week in a racially motivated incident.

Joe Davis was a member of the local chapter of the NAACP. He had long been active in the struggle for civil rights and had been a leader in many demonstrations and rallies. He was respected by both his fellow members and the community at large.

On the evening of his death, Joe was attending a meeting of the NAACP at a local church. As he was leaving the meeting, he was confronted by a group of white men who accused him of making improper advances to their wives. Joe denied the accusation and offered to prove it by calling one of his male friends over to the church to attest to his innocence. This offer was accepted.

As the group began to leave, Joe walked into the street. Suddenly, he was set upon by a group of white men who began to beat him savagely. Joe tried to escape, but he was quickly overpowered and his attackers continued to beat him until he was unconscious.

When police arrived on the scene, they found Joe lying on the ground. He was rushed to the hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The death of Joe Davis is a tragic reminder of the continued prevalence of racism and violence in our society. It is a call to action for all of us to work together to eliminate this scourge and to create a world where all people are valued and respected.

REV. TASCHEREAU ARNOLD

Miss Doctor

REVIEWING THE NEWS

ST. WILLIAM GORDON

The Russians and Human Rights

Our news will make our minds we are not going to get very far with the rest of the world. It is not surprising to see a prisoner by a Florida sheriff is giving the Russians a lot to joke about.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky Thursday, while in the United States with his title that "the United States have no right to interfere in the affairs of other nations, they should be dealing with the plight of prisoners in the United States. However, I do not see any change in the Soviet policy on the subject. It is not the first time, this obvious weakness of our policy has been noted. If we recall correctly, former Secretary of State Byrd also said that the United States have no right to interfere in the affairs of other nations. It is only apparent that the United States are not very careful about what kind of countries they deal with.

The fact that the Department of Justice has ordered an investigation of the Florida prison system is a fact that at least a portion of our population is using some logic in their considerations. It has been seen too much lack in the past in the treatment of these prisoners, especially in police brutality, and other evils of our own society. We have been too busy in the development of human decency, democracy and the rights to citizenship to preach to the rest of the world, while in our very mode, blind prejudice by ignorance still dominates.

In conclusion, the Russian was right. We are all in line with democracy, when we continue to permit acts like the Florida-Atlanta, the stance which has never been too hard, and other injustices which forever America as a haughty, proud and imperialistic nation. There is no need for us to continue to preach democracy, we should instead concentrate on the right of which we say we are preaching right here in our own back yards.

The tragic sequel

The tragic sequel is that Joe's man, who is reported to be a former member of the NAACP, was also killed in the assault. The police were unable to find any witnesses to the events, but it is believed that Joe's man was killed in self-defense.

The incident occurred in a neighborhood that has been the site of many previous racial incidents. It is believed that the attack was motivated by racial hatred.

In conclusion, it is clear that the tragic death of Joe Davis is a reminder of the continued prevalence of racism and violence in our society. It is a call to action for all of us to work together to eliminate this scourge and to create a world where all people are valued and respected.

BETWEEN THE LINES

The TRAGIC SEQUEL

There is a Latin maxim which states that "He who is hurt by the sword is bound to avenge himself with the same sword." This maxim is well illustrated by the tragic death of Joe Davis, a Negro who was killed last week in a racially motivated incident.

Joe Davis was a member of the local chapter of the NAACP. He had long been active in the struggle for civil rights and had been a leader in many demonstrations and rallies. He was respected by both his fellow members and the community at large.

On the evening of his death, Joe was attending a meeting of the NAACP at a local church. As he was leaving the meeting, he was confronted by a group of white men who accused him of making improper advances to their wives. Joe denied the accusation and offered to prove it by calling one of his male friends over to the church to attest to his innocence. This offer was accepted.

As the group began to leave, Joe walked into the street. Suddenly, he was set upon by a group of white men who began to beat him savagely. Joe tried to escape, but he was quickly overpowered and his attackers continued to beat him until he was unconscious.

When police arrived on the scene, they found Joe lying on the ground. He was rushed to the hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The death of Joe Davis is a tragic reminder of the continued prevalence of racism and violence in our society. It is a call to action for all of us to work together to eliminate this scourge and to create a world where all people are valued and respected.

REV. TASCHEREAU ARNOLD

Miss Doctor

REVIEWING THE NEWS

ST. WILLIAM GORDON

The Russians and Human Rights

Our news will make our minds we are not going to get very far with the rest of the world. It is not surprising to see a prisoner by a Florida sheriff is giving the Russians a lot to joke about.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky Thursday, while in the United States with his title that "the United States have no right to interfere in the affairs of other nations, they should be dealing with the plight of prisoners in the United States. However, I do not see any change in the Soviet policy on the subject. It is not the first time, this obvious weakness of our policy has been noted. If we recall correctly, former Secretary of State Byrd also said that the United States have no right to interfere in the affairs of other nations. It is only apparent that the United States are not very careful about what kind of countries they deal with.

The fact that the Department of Justice has ordered an investigation of the Florida prison system is a fact that at least a portion of our population is using some logic in their considerations. It has been seen too much lack in the past in the treatment of these prisoners, especially in police brutality, and other evils of our own society. We have been too busy in the development of human decency, democracy and the rights to citizenship to preach to the rest of the world, while in our very mode, blind prejudice by ignorance still dominates.

In conclusion, the Russian was right. We are all in line with democracy, when we continue to permit acts like the Florida-Atlanta, the stance which has never been too hard, and other injustices which forever America as a haughty, proud and imperialistic nation. There is no need for us to continue to preach democracy, we should instead concentrate on the right of which we say we are preaching right here in our own back yards.

The tragic sequel

The tragic sequel is that Joe's man, who is reported to be a former member of the NAACP, was also killed in the assault. The police were unable to find any witnesses to the events, but it is believed that Joe's man was killed in self-defense.

The incident occurred in a neighborhood that has been the site of many previous racial incidents. It is believed that the attack was motivated by racial hatred.

In conclusion, it is clear that the tragic death of Joe Davis is a reminder of the continued prevalence of racism and violence in our society. It is a call to action for all of us to work together to eliminate this scourge and to create a world where all people are valued and respected.
The Campbells Announce Marriage Of Daughter

ST CHARLES, Ill. — Miss Mary Campell, 19, of this city, who was graduated from the St. Charles High School, is to marry Mr. Paul Campell, Jr., 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Campell of this city, on September 23 at the Catholic Church. Mr. Campell is a student at the University of Illinois."
Morris Brown Winds Up Regular Season Against Benedict, Clark

Wolverines Play Tigers Saturday and Sunday
On Thanksgiving Day

BY JOEL W. SMITH

After games away, at Morgan, Clinton, Tuskegee, Tuskegee Institute, the Morgan Brown College. Forged a home win, at their regular season against the students in the 9th annual -

Saturday, December 2 at 3 o'clock will feature an annual game to be played between the Morgan Brown College and the Tuskegee Institute. The game will be held in the Morgan Brown College stadium and will feature the best team in each school. The game will be followed by a homecoming parade and the presentation of awards. The game is expected to be a close contest, with both teams playing well and giving their all. The homecoming parade will feature floats, bands, and other activities, making it a festive occasion for the community. The game and parade will be a great opportunity for students, alumni, and fans to come together and enjoy a fun day of sports and community events. The Morgan Brown College and the Tuskegee Institute have a long history of friendly rivalry, and this game is sure to be a highlight of the season. So, whether you are a fan of college football or just enjoy a good game, come out to see the Morgan Brown College and the Tuskegee Institute in action.
By Marion E. Jackson

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference will take drastic steps to build a "seasonal "move" initiated by the SIAA in behalf of the Tuskegee University football program.

Tuskegee, along with the other Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference member institutions, has been invited to join the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, which is scheduled to start play in the fall of 1957.

The SIAA has planned the "move" in an attempt to improve the quality of football on the southern college campuses.

Although Tuskegee has been invited to join the conference, it is not known if Tuskegee will accept the invitation.

If Tuskegee accepts the invitation, it would become the second member of the conference, with the other member being the Institution of Technology, Atlanta, Ga.

The SIAA is a collegiate athletic association established by Southern and Western colleges.

The SIAA's primary purpose is to promote the development of college athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.

The SIAA has been active in various activities such as organizing football championships, selecting football all-Americans, and promoting the development of collegiate athletics in the South.
USDA announces 1952 potato production

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently announced that a record 13.5 million bushels of potatoes were produced in 1952, compared to 1951's 12 million bushels.

The announcement was made by Secretary of Agriculture, who said the increase in production was due to improved growing conditions in the potato states. He also credited the efforts of farmers and agricultural experiment stations in developing new varieties of potatoes that are more resistant to disease and better adapted to local growing conditions.

Federal Security Agency releases "Health Book"

The Public Health Service, Public Security Agency, has issued a new "Health Book" which provides information on the latest developments in the field of public health.

The book covers a wide range of topics, including nutrition, sanitation, and health care. It is intended for use by public health officials, health professionals, and the general public.

Education Board offers gift to Ollard University

The Education Board has offered a gift to Ollard University in recognition of its contributions to education and knowledge.

The gift will be used to support the university's programs and initiatives, and will help to ensure its continued success.

Operator, give me God

By Captain A. H. Rose, M.D.

"Is this God?" asked the man. "Is this the Great White Father, the Lord of All Creation?"

"Yes, sir," said the operator. "This is God." "I don't believe you," said the man. "What is God?" "God is the Creator of the universe," said the operator. "He is the source of all life and all knowledge." "I don't believe you," said the man. "I want to see God." "God is not a physical being," said the operator. "He is not something you can see or touch."

"I don't believe you," said the man. "I want to see God."

The operator then explained to the man that God is a spiritual being, and that He can be sensed through prayer and meditation. The man then realized that he had been mistaken, and that God was indeed a reality.

Mr. W. Beverly Carter
Successful Politicise... Successful Host

A former newspaper reporter, Mr. Carter (como) always had a great interest in community affairs. This, together with a dynamic personality, led him into the public life of his community. Today, he is one of Philadelphia's most active public relations men. Here, Mr. Carter plans a radio outgoing with associates.

Successful men look for quality. They choose only the very best for themselves... and for their friends.

That's why men like W. Beverly Carter choose Lord Calvert, the whiskey of distinction.

No other whiskey can match Lord Calvert's unique flavor and aromatic depth. It represents the choicest of all the millions of gallons we distil, and no other whiskey can match Lord Calvert's reputation for consistently fine quality.

Tonight, serve Lord Calvert yourself. Ask for it in bars and package stores.

Mr. Carter's well-appointed home reflects his success. A tasteful house, as well as an interesting conversationalist, Mr. Carter entertainingly converses on his fine liquor and excellent drinks. Naturally, Mr. Carter serves the whiskey of distinction, Lord Calvert... America's finest.