“QUEER IDENTITIES, QUEER NARRATIVES

This course will examine questions of identity and desire in a relatively small sampling of works by, and/or about gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgendered people. In addition to the literary questions raised by the selected novels, plays, short stories, and poems we will be attentive to the way these works have participated in creating the modern history of sexuality, how they have helped make queer identity and queer politics possible. Some of the works we read will openly address the experiences of gay people in a homophobic world. Other works will provide insight into the narrative strategies that writers have used to explore the forbidden topic of same-sex desire. As we read and discuss these texts, we will be considering some of the vexed issues that crop up whenever one claims an identity for oneself or imposes an identity on others.

Course objectives: become conversant with some of the key works of the European/American GLBT literary tradition; be able to articulate and think critically about the major terms, concepts, and themes of this tradition; be able to interpret and argue about these works in writing, with precision and persuasiveness,

Paper #2 (4-6 pages) 25%

Paper #3 (7-9 pages) 30%

Presentation 10%

Attendance and Participation 15%

(includes quizzes, homework, informal writing)

Presentations: Each student will sign up, in a group of 2-3, for one of 9 presentation topics. You will first research that topic on your own and prepare a short annotated bibliography presenting that research, that you will hand in to me. Then, you will work with the other members of your group to prepare a polished, informative presentation of about 15 minutes for the class on the assigned day. The bibliography will be graded individually. The group will receive a grade as a whole. Each group will need to meet with me in advance to discuss the presentation topic.

Resources for writing papers and documenting sources:

- “A Guide to Effective Paper Writing” (distributed to all Rhodes students), also available on-line: <http://www.rhodes.edu/9076.asp>
- The Writing Center (Barret Library) <http://www.rhodes.edu/4680.asp>

The documentation style required for this class is MLA (Modern Language Association). Guidelines for MLA style can be found in The MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers. Many writing handbooks used in Rhodes writing seminars (such as Diana Hacker's A Writer's Reference), contain abbreviated versions of the MLA guidelines. If you do not already own one of these guides, you will need to purchase one.

Participation and Confidentiality: The success of this seminar depends upon the active and engaged participation of everyone in the class. The nature of the course makes it essential that all members of the class feel that they can speak freely about potentially sensitive subjects. It goes without saying that no one should fear that their words or opinions are the subject of gossip outside of class.

Policies

- All assigned reading and writing is due at the beginning of the class for which it is assigned, unless otherwise noted. Always bring the assigned text to class; repeated failure to do so will cause you to be marked absent.
- Be on time to class. Repeated lateness will cause you to be marked absent.
- Absences: more than two absences during the semester will adversely affect your final grade. Five or more absences is grounds for failing the class. It is your responsibility to keep track of your own absences.
- Failure to complete one or more assignments or to attend class on a regular basis will result in a failing grade for the course.
- The schedule of assignments is subject to change as needed, so if you miss a class, make sure you check with a classmate to get both notes and confirm the next assignment. Except under extraordinary circumstances, I do not provide class notes to students who miss class. If you are absent, it is your responsibility to catch up on what you missed from someone in the class.
- Late assignments will be penalized a third of a letter grade per day. Except in the case of documented illness or family emergency (and by prior arrangement with me), papers more than a week late will receive a failing grade. Under extremely special circumstances I may grant extensions on papers, but I will only consider requests made in advance of the due date. If you believe you have a legitimate reason to ask for an extension, you must contact me at least two class periods before the paper is due. Requests made for extensions on the night before or the day a paper is due will not be entertained. Email is not an appropriate medium for requesting extensions or any other kind of dispensation.
- Email etiquette: Email is a very useful invention that, in many ways, saves time. However, it also has some undesirable effects. I am happy to answer quick questions over email as my time permits, but you need to make sure that you have used your own resources (like the syllabus or the college web page) first. Make sure that you carefully proofread your email before pushing "send." If there is something you need to discuss or negotiate, you need to do it in person or, failing that, over the phone. In order to prevent email from interrupting my own work, I generally set aside one part of the day to responding to it rather than monitoring it throughout the day. I reserve the right to ignore emails that transgress these rules of etiquette.
- I do not accept work that has been previously handed in for another class. Such work will receive a failing grade.
- Plagiarism: failure to adequately document a source of any kind, whether or not intentional, constitutes plagiarism and must be dealt with by the Rhodes Honor Council. For a quick reminder of how to recognize and avoid plagiarism, see the Rhodes Writing Center website:
