COURSE STATEMENT

Anthropology is not the study of the range of “bizarre” human behavior; anthropology is rather the study of the range of normal human behavior. This course will explore this range.

THE "WONDERS" BEYOND RHODES

We enter the world with the marvelous capacity to live any one of a thousand different kinds of life, as the anthropologist, Geertz, says. Nevertheless once we begin to live the life that is to become ours, we often live it with the amazing conviction that it is the best, and possibly the only “reasonable”, way to live. Those other lives that could have been ours are also lived with equal conviction. Many of those different kinds of lives are lived next door when society sees "race"¹, gender, age, religious conviction, wealth, etc. as differences that make a difference in the life you are allowed to live. Yet many of those lives are also found spread across six continents and thousands of islands on this planet.

CHALLENGE TO OUR LIMITED [CULTURAL] IMAGINATIONS

There is a significant challenge that faces us in attempting to understand any of those thousand different lives that could have been ours. If we attempt to imagine our way into alternative realities while firmly rooted in a parochial stance (both literally and figuratively), the exercise risks futility. With our lives as sole cultural reference we exercise a limited imagination of comparison, most often conceiving of the “other” in terms of "absences" rather than "alternatives." Sometimes we imagine these individuals, through the absences of technology and literacy, to be pre-, proto- or primitive versions of ourselves. Or through the absences of modern dilemmas such as time pressures and consumerism, we imagine the "other" as our Edenic alter ego. Both of these “imaginings” are impoverished.

OUR ENGAGEMENT IN THE WORLD BEYOND RHODES

A rich and enriching appreciation of those thousand of other kinds of life cannot be acquired simply nor exclusively through pursuits of "the mind," no matter how imaginative. Engagement in a culture through participation and dialogue are critical in our attempts to understand the diversity of thought and behavior that is the most astonishing of human characteristics. Such engagement allows us to go beyond naïve bewilderment and shock at difference to a more informed sense of wonder at human and cultural diversity. Anthropology is not about documenting “bizarre” human customs; anthropology is about exploring the range of normal human behavior.

Perhaps "living intimately with strangers" is not the form of engagement suitable for all individuals. Nevertheless, among our community we are in need of those who will undertake this challenge to their "creature" comforts and scholastic complacency. We need individuals such as anthropologists to help us gain a healthy respect for the intensity and integrity of other lives as negotiated from day to day and a solid respect for the philosophical and intellectual products of other cultures. We need such individuals because each day many of these thousands of different lives of individuals and many different cultures are not only endangered but are lost through disease, attrition, acculturation and genocide. Lives are lost and this is a tragedy of immense proportion. But it is tragic also that we are losing cultural alternatives, losing the diversity that is critical to the survival of any species. If we limit our cultural imaginations, either through loss of diversity or through experiential timidity, or worse, through indifference, then we become impoverished as a species and as individuals. We will not be able to imagine our way out of the limits of our current world and we risk becoming convinced of the inevitability and immutability of our particular alternative reality, ultimately a form of surrender to social, cultural and intellectual lethargy.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Class attendance and class participation are very important if you wish to take an active interest in your education and move along the path to enlightenment. Besides lectures and assigned readings, this course requires class participation, completing 4 short essay assignments (4-5 pages), a mid-term and a final exam, and viewing of several films outside regular class time

Essays are normally due one week after they are assigned. The essays will be in the style of a journal entry or a short exploratory piece. Late papers and assignments will not be accepted, except in the case of very extenuating circumstances. In such a case, permission to turn in an assignment late must be obtained in person from the instructor before the assignment due date. Such late submissions can carry an automatic grade penalty.

Failure to adequately complete any assignment or to take any exam will result in a failing grade for the course. Absences and/or failure to participate in class can lower your grade. In the case of 3 absences a grade of “D” will be assigned for class participation. 4 absences will result in a grade of “F” for class participation. In the case of 5 or more absences, a failing grade as a rule will be assigned for the course. You are asked to self-report on absences. Upon returning to class after an absence, you should sign the attendance notebook with the date of the absence(s) and the reason for the absence.

Incompletes are not normally given in this class. In the rare case where an incomplete may be in order, the student must obtain permission from the instructor in person and complete all paper work for the Registrar before the final day of the course.

FINAL EXAM	Wednesday, December 14th, 5:30 PM
ALTERNATE TIME	Monday, December 12th, 8:30 AM

Dear tool-brandishing, symbol-wielding, culture-bearing animals,

Throughout the semester you will be doing presentations concerning anthropological concerns in the news and the relevance of anthropological studies and arguments to contemporary U.S. society. The following are some guidelines for these assignments

Your participation in these presentations contributes to your grade in "class participation." Doing a reasonable job in these presentations and participating in all the presentations assigned to your group will guarantee you a baseline grade of "B-" for class participation. This grade can be augmented by the quality of your contributions to this exercise, by how effective you are in enticing other members of the class to join class discussion, as well as additional participation in class. This grade can be lowered by significant absences, cell phone ringing, etc.

Indigenous Peoples and Anthropology Watch

15 minutes is not much time, as you will come to realize. It is thus advisable to coordinate group coverage of one or two media stories rather than each doing an individual story. The media stories should come NOT FROM THE WEB but from the following sources:

- New York Times newspaper from the week preceding the presentation
- The Commercial Appeal from the week preceding the presentation
- The most recent copies of magazines to which you regularly subscribe

While PowerPoints are not necessary, they can be useful to show maps, timelines, artifacts, environments, people, etc.

What this means to me and the USAns

Again, 15 minutes is not much time. Thus it is also advisable in this case to coordinate group coverage of one or two issues from the readings that can be opened up for discussion. It is always useful to pursue a bit of additional research on the issues that go beyond the readings to help engage the class in discussing and applying what they have learned.

In each case, please try to keep me out of the discussion and bring your classmates into the discussion. You are free to direct questions to me, but I will try to keep my additional comments for the "wrapping up" of these short discussion sessions.
