ALUMNUS RENDERS DISTINGUISHED SERVICE

Senator Pittman Solves Silver Scarcity for Great Britain.

Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, an alumnus of Southwestern of the class of . . . , though one of the younger members of the Senate, is one of the administration leaders, and is now serving his second term.

One of the first in the rush to Alaska in 1897, he remained for four years and contributed much to the maintenance of order in that rough community. He was the first prosecuting attorney in the gold camp and helped formulate the government for Nome. In 1902 he began the practice of law in Tonopah, Nevada.

In the Senate he is an authority on monetary and financial questions, and was requested by the administration to prepare the bill now known as the Pittman Act. As a result of this measure the silver dollars in the treasury were converted into bullion and placed at the disposal of the Allies, principally Great Britain. Probably without this relief Britain's relations with her Asiatic colonies would have been desperate, and disaster to the Allied cause in general may have resulted. It was Senator Pittman's genius which saved the day in a most material sense.

Southwestern honored a distinguished alumnus and herself by conferring upon Senator Pittman the degree of Doctor of Laws last June.

Southwestern Alumni will be interested in the following article, reprinted from "The Magazine of Wall Street" of July 5, 1919, which was prepared by Senator Pittman:

"The silver situation is challenging the attention and study of the statesmen and financiers of the world.

"There has been little change for many years in the physical facts surrounding the production of the metal, but its position as a dominating factor in commerce seems to have only been awakened by remarkable demonstrations during the war.

"At the time of the passage of the Pittman act in April, 1918, a critical situation was threatened in India by reason of the inability of Great Britain to obtain silver to supply the Indian demand.

"Some day the proper British authorities may consider it advisable to tell the world how serious this situation was and how vital our action was to the successful termination of the war.

"There was no surplus supply of silver in the world, except the silver dollars in the United States Treasury, held to redeem silver certificates issued against them. It then became known to all governments that the production of silver had always been exceedingly limited.

"A study of the statistics demonstrated that during the past seventeen years the world's production of silver annually had not exceeded 175,000,000 ounces, and that in each of those years the demand had constantly doubled that of the production.

"The war demonstrated the instability of government—the instability of fiat paper money—and a commercial necessity for metallic money. It also demonstrated the insufficient supply of gold. Every government was utilizing every power to retain its gold, and one of the methods of retaining gold was to pay in silver.

"It also developed that there are peoples who are so prejudiced in favor of silver metal that they will even decline to accept gold in payment of debts. Such people are few and it is only mentioned as one of the incidents that forced the consideration of the silver problem upon the statesmen and financiers of the great countries.

"China, Japan and nearly all of the Latin-American countries, although on a gold basis, transact most of their domestic commerce with silver. India is a great sink for silver. No silver that enters there returns to the world's circulation again.

"Production of silver has been decreasing throughout the world while the demand has been steadily increasing as the world's commerce has increased.

"The United States produces over one-third of the annual production of the world; the United States, Canada and Mexico produce over three-quarters of the silver of the world, and up until the passage of the Pittman act, the silver market of the world was dominated in London and the price of silver there arbitrarily fixed each morning.

"Our government by promising to buy silver whenever it dropped to one dollar per ounce, prevented London from fixing the price below that amount. In other words, it took the control of the silver market away from London. How was it possible for London to control the silver market when nearly all of the silver was produced on the American continent?

"This was very simple. There were thousands of producers and sellers of silver and they were prevented from combining under our anti-trust statute while there was virtually only one buyer in the world, and that was London. In other words, the buyers were combined and the sellers were wildly competing that they might continue the silver industry.

"Congress passed the Webb-Pomerene act to meet just such conditions. Under this bill, our silver producers may combine to meet foreign combinations. When this is accomplished the value of silver will be fixed by the law of supply and demand.

PEABODY COLLEGE VICTORS IN ROUGH GAME.

'Varsity Succumbs to Defeat After Strenuous Exam Week.

Saturday night, January 31, the Varsity was defeated by the George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville by a score of 27-20.

This was the first game the Varsity had played since examinations, which ended the day before, having had no practice for more than a week and were far from being ready to compete in a match game.

The game was refereed by the physical director of the Nashville Y. M. C. A., who was so lenient in calling fouls that a rough and tumble match was the outcome. Many hard falls were effected on the slick floor, which had recently been waxed for a dance.

Lindamood threw three field goals, and six fouls out of six chances. Richardson and Cobb threw two field goals each. About the same number of fouls were called on both teams, but Peabody failed to prove as efficient from the foul line as Lindamood. At the end of the first half the score stood 17-17.

Quite a number of students from the Middle Tennessee Normal School and from Vanderbilt University were present, as well as a number of local students who accompanied the team to Nashville and gave the Varsity their unanimous support, which was a great encouragement; but the strenuous examination week just completed rendered a victory impossible on the part of our Varsity.

UNIVERSITY HAS SEEN SERVICE SINCE 1848.

Sketch of History Covering Seventy-Two Years of Active Service.

In view of the fact that comparatively few students know the actual history of Southwestern, it seems advisable at this time to print just a short sketch, summarizing the main details into a few paragraphs, which appeared in the Leaf-Chronicle of January 16, as follows:

Although Southwestern Presbyterian University was not definitely incorporated until 1875, it is necessary to return to ante-bellum days in order to trace the full history of the property that now forms part of its equipment.

In 1848 the Masonic Fraternity of Montgomery County, in accordance with plans formed by the Grand Lodge of the State of Tennessee, erected the building now known as "The Castle," naming the institution Montgomery Masonic College. The support of the Grand Lodge having been early withdrawn, the institution was conducted solely by the Masons of Montgomery County. In 1855 financial embarrassment caused the trustees to transfer the college to the Presbyterian Synod of Nashville. Professor W. M. Stewart, a prominent promoter of the Masonic institution, was made President and the name was changed to Stewart College. Three years later President Stewart resigned and was succeeded by Rev. R. B. McMullen. The need of a dormitory was soon felt and in 1860 Robb Hall was erected, named in honor of Col. Albert Robb, who had urged its construction. The death of Rev. Mr. McMullen caused Professor Stewart again to assume the duties of the Presidency. In 1870 he was succeeded by Dr. J. B. Shearer, under whose administration occurred the incorporation of the present institution, Southwestern Presbyterian University.

Soon after the close of the Civil War, a movement was agitated for the founding of a university under the patronage of the Southern Presbyterian Church. As it later became evident that it was not feasible for the entire church to cooperate in this plan, the church in the Southwest determined to undertake the enterprise. Accordingly, the Synods of Alabama, Texas, Mississippi, Memphis and Nashville, in 1878, appointed commissioners to meet in Memphis and adopt a plan of union for the project. Bids for location having been solicited, the city of Clarksville was selected and the property and endowment of Stewart College were transferred to the Board of Directors, which had been created by the meeting of commissioners held in Memphis. Nineteen acres of additional ground were purchased for the enlargement of the campus and

SUNDAY AFTERNOON SERVICE ENJOYED.

Mr. McAtee Makes Appeal to Students.

The Sunday afternoon Y. M. C. A. service was led by the president, who gave a most interesting talk in the form of an appeal to the students.

The point emphasized by Mr. McAtee was a search for Christ, and asked the question whether it is better for us to seek worldly riches in the hope of finding happiness, or to make sacrifices for Christ in giving the best that we have to the world for the advancement of the kingdom of God.

EDUCATION TWO CENTURIES AGO.

Early student dwellers in Massachusetts Hall, Harvard University, said to be the oldest college building in America, were subject to fines for various college offenses. One scale of such fines read, according to the New York Times, as follows: Absence from prayers, 2 pennies; absence from public worship, 9 pennies; neglect to repeat sermon, 9 pennies; frequenting taverns, 1 shilling 6 pennies; profane cursing, 2 shillings 6 pennies; lying, 1 shilling 6 pennies; going up on top of the college, 1 shilling 6 pennies; tumultuous noise, 1 shilling 6 pennies; rudeness at meals, 1 shilling; keeping guns or going skating, 1 shilling; fighting or hurting persons, 1 shilling 6 pennies; refusing to give evidence, 3 shillings; playing cards, 5 shillings.—School Life.

 the city added the endowment by a gift of $50,000.

Dr. Shearer was appointed acting head of the new institution. The Chancellorship was offered to the Rev. B. M. Palmer, D.D., of New Orleans, but the reluctance of his congregation to submit to his withdrawal caused him to decline the call. In 1879 the Rev. J. N. Waddel, D.D., became the first Chancellor of the University. Dr. Waddel had long been connected with educational work in the Southwest, having been Professor of Ancient Languages in the University of Mississippi, President of Lagrange College, and Chancellor of the University of Mississippi. At the time of his election to the Chancellorship he was serving as Secretary of Education of the Southern Presbyterian Church.

Shortly before Chancellor Waddel assumed his duties an addition had been made to the University property in the form of Stewart Building, erected in 1878, and named in honor of Professor Stewart, who had died in the previous year.

The Synods of Texas and Arkansas withdrew from the group of controlling bodies after the founding of a separate Presbyterian College within the bounds of those states. The University is now under the control of the Synods of Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee.

In 1885 the School of Divinity was added to the other departments of the University. By funds contributed chiefly in New Orleans and Memphis, the Palmer Professorship of Theology was founded. Later came the Waddel Professorship of Biblical Languages and Literature and the McComb Professorship of History, including Ecclesiastical History. Owing to the increased cost of maintenance, the theological department of the institution was indefinitely suspended in June, 1917.

In 1888 Dr. Waddel retired from the Chancellorship on account of advancing age. The office was then held in succession by Drs. C. C. Hersman, J. M. Rawlings, George Summey, N. M. Woods and William Dinwiddie. In 1914 the executive title was changed to President, and Dr. John R. Dobyms, of Jackson, Miss., was first elected to fill this office. On his withdrawal in 1916, Dr. George Lang, then Professor of History and Economics, was temporarily appointed acting head. At the close of that session, Dr. Charles E. Diehl, the present head of the institution, was elected President. During the administration of Chancellor Summey the endowment was largely increased and Waddel Hall, a memorial of the first Chancellor, was erected. The last of the buildings, the

PERSONALS.

Mr. B. T. Hoover of Pickens, Miss., returned to his home after having remained with us one semester.

Rustic life seems to have lured Mr. W. C. Cook into leaving us. Mr. Cook recently returned to his home at Charlotte, Tenn., to take charge of his father's farm. We fear that our young friend is contemplating matrimony.

Mr. James Major left Friday to spend the holidays with his people. He returned Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Diehl was in Memphis on business. He returned Saturday.

"The law of supply and demand ran the price of platinum up during the war from about $30 an ounce to over $100 an ounce. If the demand for silver is even twice the supply, we have a right at least to assert that the price of silver is going up much higher.

"If it goes to $1.29 per ounce it will bring about a change in the parity of gold and silver as used in our money exchanges. This would undoubtedly cause a great deal of inconvenience to the world's monetary systems.

"It would possibly result in the melting up of silver coin and its translation into bullion. The United States would suffer less from this inconvenience than almost any other nation by reason of its large production.

"It is very difficult to see why any of our statesmen or financiers would oppose an increase in the value of any product of which the United States produces virtually one-third. The natural progression of silver towards a value fixed by supply and demand will be expedited by the establishment of a silver exchange. Such exchange will keep the producer, the purchaser and the broker constantly informed as to the supply and demand.

"In my opinion, the ultimate result of the silver movement is the readjustment and stabilization of money exchanges through an international monetary conference."—Reprinted from The Magazine of Wall Street, July 5, 1919.

One of the most delightful fraternity parties of the year was held in the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity room, Friday night, January 30, 1920. Coming close on the heels of a week of strain and hard work it was most thoroughly enjoyed. The room was most tastefully decorated with pennants, and a light beamed from behind a very beautiful design of the pin, bearing the exact cut, and carrying out the fraternity colors, Garnet and Gold, which had been made by one of the fraternity brothers.

During the evening many old-fashioned games were played and new and unknown tricks performed. Most delightful refreshments were served, consisting of sandwiches and coffee, followed by ice cream and cake.

The following members and their young lady friends enjoyed this affair, which was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Porter: Messrs. Armstrong, Bragg, Ashby, Bailey, Buckley, Draughn, J. A. Lindamood, S. L.
