REQUIRED TEXT

The New Oxford Annotated Bible (3rd edition; Oxford University Press, 2001).

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course will be an introduction to the academic study of the Bible. Particular attention will be paid to the importance of understanding biblical texts within their own historical and cultural contexts. A diverse selection of readings will be studied under the general theme “images of God.” The primary objective of the course is to enable the student to appreciate the wide range of understandings of the deity present in the biblical tradition and to develop an awareness of the important role a text’s context plays in shaping its presentation of God.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

1) Attendance and class participation/preparation

Attendance is expected. Only through class attendance will you gain sufficient mastery of the course material to succeed on exams. More than four unexcused absences will adversely affect your grade.

Active class participation is also expected. The Life program is built on guided discussion of common readings. The readings on the attached schedule are to be completed prior to each class. Students are to come to class with the text, having read the material and being prepared to discuss and/or briefly write about it.

Attendance/participation will account for 20% of your final grade.

2) Daily writing assignments

In place of a term paper, there will be a writing assignment for each class period. This will be a response to a particular question that will be related to the day’s reading that must be completed prior to the class meeting.

The course has a website where the writing assignments and other information can be found. Details about this website and how to access it will be given during the first few classes of the semester. Writing assignments will account for 20% of your final grade.

3) Exams

There will be two exams during the semester (September 27 & November 5) and a final exam that will be taken during finals week. Each exam will be worth 20% with the total accounting for 60% of your final grade.
