Course description:

In this course we will inquire together into what forces shaped the world you were born into, and what changes over the last couple of decades shaped the world we live in today. I have designed the course around two books: one historical, and one contemporary. The assignments, class discussions, and world politics textbook will help you analyze these works and apply basic knowledge of international relations to the events, issues, and scenarios described in them. This course is designed to serve as a foundation for all other IS courses. What you learn will also enhance your studies of many other fields, including anthropology, history, global health, environmental studies, and economics. By the end of the course you will be familiar with the various approaches to thinking about international politics, basic concepts like power and globalization, and areas such as international trade and institutions, among other things.

If you have a documented disability or other issue that requires assistance, please let me know by the end of the second week of classes and I will be happy to help or refer you to Student Disability Services (SDS).

Texts:

Collier, Paul. The Bottom Billion: Why the Poorest Countries are Failing and What Can Be Done About It. Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2007.

Gaddis, John Lewis. The Cold War: A New History. New York: Penguin, 2005.

Mingst, Karen A. Essentials of International Relations, 4th ed. New York: W.W. Norton & Co. 2008.

Because this is an international relations course, you will benefit greatly if you read on a regular basis from the New York Times (www.nytimes.com), Washington Post (www.washingtonpost.com), BBC World News (www.bbc.co.uk), the Economist (access through the library), or another reputable print news source. I highly recommend the blog from Foreign Policy Magazine, found at <http://blog.foreignpolicy.com>, for a quick way to catch up on the day's events.

Class policies:

- This syllabus is subject to change.
- I expect you to attend class and arrive on time. Any illnesses should be documented by a medical professional. Only if you provide documentation will you be allowed to make up missed work.
- We will take the Honor Code very seriously. You can read the policy at www.rhodes.edu/campuslife/1478.asp.
- We will all benefit if you are active and respectful participants in the class, do the readings before class and keep up with the news daily. The participation grade for the course is earned.
- Make-up exams: If you miss an exam for a documented illness or college-sponsored event you may take the exam before the scheduled exam date when possible, or soon after in rare instances.
- If you are a student athlete, please inform me of when there will be conflicts and prepare to complete assignments early.
- The best way to get in touch with me is via email. However, so that I may spend time with my family I often do not check or answer email after 5pm each day or on the weekends.

Requirements:

Three exams

The exams all have in-class portions that will cover terms and concepts in a definition and short answer format and the first two have a take-home essay portion, due at the beginning of the class following the exam. All exams are cumulative.

- 15% Exam 1, Friday, 9/25. Take-home portion due in class 9/28.
- 20% Exam 2, Friday, 11/13. Take-home portion due in class 11/16.
- 25% Exam 3, Wednesday, 12/16 at 8:30am (same classroom).

Map Test, Friday, 10/16 in class (5%)

- The International Studies Department requires a grade of 90% or above on this test. You may retake the test until you achieve this score but you must earn a 90% by the last day of classes or you will not be allowed to take the final exam and therefore will receive a zero on the exam. The first score you receive on the Map Test given in class will stand as 5 percent of your grade for the course. Correct spelling is required and study resources are available in my Public Folder from the Shortcut to Acad_Dept_Pgm on the desktop of most campus computers.

Participation and journal responses (20%)

- You will have the opportunity to submit between 3-4 responses to the reading question on Moodle throughout the weeks before each exam, for a total of between 9-12 responses by the end of the semester. If you feel strongly motivated, you may submit up to 5 responses before each exam. You have total leverage to choose which days or questions to which you prefer to respond. These responses are an important part of the learning process because they will help prepare you for class discussion. They will also prepare you for the essay questions on exams. I will not look for whether you are “right” or “wrong”, but will guide you in your attempts to “think on paper” and reason through the questions.

- All classes involve some level of discussion but in the following calendar I have marked several days as specific “discussion classes”. In these classes you will take charge of facilitating discussion and I will participate alongside you in collective inquiry. You should prepare a short list of questions and issues to talk about before each of these classes.

Final reflection essay (15%)

- The question you will address in your final essay will be given to you sometime during the semester. You should treat your final reflection essay as your opportunity to bring together all that you have learned throughout the course. You may turn in a first draft in class Monday, 11/30 for my comments. You may turn in the final draft to my office by noon, Monday, 12/14. Please double space and staple your essays.
