On March 28, 1968, The Dr. Martin Luther King arrived in Memphis to lead a protest march in behalf of the sanitation workers. The march originated due to the partial treatment of the sanitation workers. But because of circumstances, I was unable to participate in the march; a march that I deeply believe that it was altogether fitting and proper. Because of my absence I am unable to give you a more accurate account of what took place in Memphis on Thursday; but I was able to get the comments of a businessman as to how he felt toward the incident that occurred in the city of "good advice":

With his business situated in a predominantly Negro neighborhood and a victim of the incident. With his merchandise ^{spread} on the sidewalk and his windows broken, he responded to the question in this respect, "the much as with looting and smashing of windows was an insidious plot to give the colored man a chance to destroy or ruin white businesses and to revenge the mayor for his actions. King is a man of poor leadership ability and should not have the right to lead a demonstration, but he nevertheless the march should never have taken place because it had no value." By what do you mean the march had no value?

"I find that there was no for a demonstration upon the policy of our mayor, it's totally unimpressive. Mayor Job 10-2 actions are right and in with in this constitution in rights to deal with the situation as he sees fit. The mayor is dealing with the problem sufficiently."

I am talking with the reaction of great acath and a lack of animosity, he feels that this protest and other protest are "a sub because it has been" seriously.
There should be extreme measures taken to prevent these types of incidents. There are such as, then a police protection prosecute these destructive people to the highest level organizations as the T.A.C.F., A.C.S.C. and above all the Memphis militants, the ~~Int.~~ Invaders because they can be detrimental in our city and cities. Businessmen before these types of incidents, they can do some up with reasons... if the Negro should protest, they believe the Negro should be satisfied with what they have.

But in conclusion I give my harsh opinion to the situation and it went. "I feel that the demonstration was only a small way of protesting the way we have been treated and mistreated, and now we are rebelling a billion people leading unified. With the prevailing system of discrimination there is going to be boycotts, discrimination, and perhaps violence to secure us liberty. Discrimination creates a social problem some get it wrong, and the for us to destroy this social problem we must and will destroy discrimination. The only for the "black man" to stop protesting, is to give the "black man" what he is protesting for and that is "equal rights," full equal rights.
