BARRY FULLER (Director) Barry's stage credits are legion. He has directed, acted in, and choreographed productions in virtually every theatre in Memphis. The one show he would do again is "Oh, Coward." The show he has wanted most to direct is (was) "Candide." The McCoy Theatre could not have found a more suitable talent to direct its first production.

TONY LEE GARNER (Musical Director, Conductor) "Candide" is now added to the long list of musicals for which Tony has been Musical Director. He has directed musicals at Theatre Memphis since 1968. At Southwestern, he is conductor of the Southwestern Singers and the Southwestern Chamber Orchestra.

HENRY SWANSON (Set Design) Henry's position on the faculty in the Memphis State University Theatre department is just one aspect of a many faceted talent. He was the Theatre Consultant for the McCoy Theatre as he is for the Mud Island project. No one knows the theatre space as well as Henry. Add that knowledge to his talent as a set designer and it can easily be seen why the McCoy Theatre considers it extremely good fortune to have Henry as the set designer of its first show.
