Course Description:

The purpose of this course is to attain a fundamental understanding of the diverse experiences of black people in the United States from the colonial period through the Civil Rights movement. While the time period discussed is extensive, we will examine each era through three themes; social, economic, and political. In analyzing these themes, this course will consider the overall United States racial climate during specific eras and its impact on African-Americans. Additionally, we will discuss how some blacks responded to their status in society.

Readings:

Franklin, John Hope, From Slavery to Freedom, McGraw-Hill, 1990.

Supplementary readings packet available through the History Department (110 Clough)

Grading:

Grades will be determined from the following course requirements:

1. 45% (15% each) - Three 2-4 page "reaction" papers. Throughout the semester, students will write
2. 20% - Exam I. The examinations will consist of a few short answers as well as at least one more
