Course Objectives: Russian literature of the Nineteenth Century is a complex and fascinating phenomenon. Ironically, it flourishes with particular vibrancy during one of Russia's most repressive regimes – that of Nikolai I (known as “The Iron Tsar”). Russian literature of this time grapples with some of the most interesting and difficult questions concerning the intellectual's role in society, personal and social mores, and the role of literature itself. In addition, there is the constant issue of the West's influence on Russian culture and of Russian literature's influence on the West (what Malcolm V. Jones said about the Russian intelligentsia could easily be said about Russian literature of the nineteenth century, namely, that it is “both a channel for the assimilation of Western cultural traditions and a vehicle for the affirmation of Russia's own unique experience and values ... ”¹). This course aims at fostering an appreciation for the many-sidedness of Russian literature of this period, while explaining the cultural and socio-political context of its development.

Another important aim of this course is to develop the students' writing skills (see Schedule).

Required Texts:

Alexander Pushkin, Eugene Onegin

Alexander Pushkin The Complete Prose Tales of Alexander Sergeyevich Pushkin

Mikhail Lermontov A Hero of Our Time

Nicolai Gogol Plays and Petersburg Tales

Ivan Turgenev Fathers and Sons

Ivan Goncharov Oblomov

Fyodor Dostoevsky Crime and Punishment

Leo Tolstoy Anna Karenina

Anton Chekhov Anton Chekhov's Plays

¹ The Cambridge Companion to The Classic Russian Novel, eds. Malcolm V. Jones and Robin Feuer Miller. Cambridge UP: Cambridge, 1998. p. 2

Additional readings may be handed out and others will be available on reserve in the library throughout the course of the semester. Besides readings, we will be viewing film adaptations of a number of works of nineteenth-century Russian literature.

Course Requirements and Evaluation:

- | | |
|---|-----|
| 1. Class participation | 10% |
| 2. Three Essays ² (7-10 pages in length) | 75% |
| 3. Informational Quizzes | 15% |

The majority of time spent in class will be in discussions about the reading. Class participation, therefore, is the bread-and-butter of this course. I will take attendance every class. All students are expected to participate in class discussions.

There will be three essays on topics you choose. As you will notice in the schedule, for the first two essays there is an initial and final submission. If you take the advice given after the initial submission, you will probably do fine on the final submission. If you ignore the advice on the initial submission and try to write the final essay at the last minute, you will probably not do very well. The final grade on those essays with two submissions will be an average of the grades of each submission.

Informational quizzes may be announced or unannounced, but will always deal with very recent readings or issues we discussed in class.
